He awoke to find the hall a burning furnace. With his fist he broke the glass of the rear window, hoping to escape that way, but was confronted by the heavy windows that make the place burgiar-proof. Both his hands were deeply cut by the glass. Finding there was no other way, he rushed through the hall and reached the street, burned and bleeding.

While these people were making their perilous escape in the front of the house, the situation in the rear was even worse. on Rothsky was sleeping in the

There was a sheet of flame between the men who were holding the quilt and the people hemmed in above. It seemed certain death for the children to be dropped through it with the bare chance of them landing in the quilt. But it was the only chance to save them.

Philip Marks was the first to throw his three-year-old child. It landed safely in the quilt. This encouraged the others and all wanted to drop their children at once. Marks droped his six remaining children, and five of Mrs. Herman Wordenfeld, on the same floor, followed. Then half a dezen from the third floor were dropped.

Hyman Ehrenwost, who with his wife and child lives on the fourth floor, was the first man to jump into the quilt, and he was followed by his eventeen-year-old son and his wife, Annie. The woman is quite stout, and the quilt broke under her weight. Her back was sprained.

The child had been in the house only since yesterday morning. Her mother, who lives in Mulberry street, sent her to her uncle. Peter Rintz, because it was her birthday, and her uncle gave her a little dinner. The child was to have gone home last night, but was too tired, so she was put to bed.

Meyer Deltchek, forty-one years old, who lived on the third floor, tried to get cut of the lower hall. His face, arms and body were badly burned.

Simon Lehman, who lived on the top floor, was in a dangerous position on the rear fire-escape. He jumped and escaped with a sprained ankle.

Jacob Cohen and wife and Jacob Koeull, who lived on the top floor, were carried down ladders by the firemen.

Before the flames could be controlled they had burned through the entire louse.

An investigation developed the fact, he wever that the fire-box on the second landing of the visitors' entrance had been tampered with. It was found open. The key was in its place. Underneath the box was a stool that had been in a store-room near by. Further investigation showed muddy footprints leading from the street to the box. Evidently a boy in the street did the mischief. Principal Sieberg does not believe any of his scholars are guilty.

Frazer River Flood Increasing an the Damage Tremendous.

(By Associated Press. PUEBLO, Col., May 3L-It has rained incessantly for thirty hours all over the eastern part of the State. The rainfall is one of the heaviest ever known. In this city the Arkansas River broke the levee in six places. From Union avenue viaduct to the post-office, three-quarters of a mile, all cellars are flooded, and water rises two feet above the first floors. The electric street cars have stopped running, the works being flooded. Hundreds of men are out in boats, rescaing families from flooded houses and removing goods. The five railroads entering the MANITOU, Col., May 31.—Apprehension was felt here last night lest the dam in Lake Moraine, built to supply Colorado Springs with water, should break; but Supt. Rice says it is secure. Pike's Peak Railroad has been damaged by floods for the first time since it was built, and no trains are running. The Rio Grande and the Santa Fe Railroads are blocked by washouts and landsides.

SPOKANE. Wash. May 31.—Word reached here last night that the town of Concunelli was swept away by a flood. It is said that every business house in town was destroyed and that nearly all of the residences were swept away. Mrs. Almira Keith lost her life. Much suffering is reported among the insuffering is reported among the in habitants of the devastated town.

Frazer River Still Rises. VANCOUVER, B. C., May 31.—The Frazer River is still rising, and the indications are that the flood will be even more disastrous than the memorable one of 182. The river has already risen within eight inches of the high water mark of that great inundation. The whole valley is under water, the Frazer having spread out into a vast lake. The tide is now crawling up at the rate of an inch every three hours.

At Westminister the river wharves are submerged. Many cabins along the water front have floated off on the tide, and many poor families have lost all their belongings. Points further up the river report that the danger increases. At Nicomen Island forty-four fine farms are entirely under water.

Annacis Island Submerged.

Annacis Island Submerged. Annacis island Submerged.

Annacis Island, two miles above New Westminster, is totally submerged. Many fine farms formerly dotted the island. The ranchers were rescued by steamboats, but all their stock has gone down the river. All the river steamers have been commissioned by the Governmeit to assist in saving imperiiled persons. In the vicinity of Ruby, the greatest danger is apparent and several steamers have been despatched to the district.
